Hi Mark –

Thanks for your edits. As Tom Buroker has discussed with Christie True, Ecology is willing to take lead on the groundwater sampling effort. It sounds like this would be acceptable to the County. I've made some changes to the Roles and Responsibilities paragraph to reflect that discussion (redline attached). It would also be helpful for Ecology to have the MOU note that the parties will provide support to each other in obtaining access to the property where the wells are located. Let me know if you have some other language in mind.

Ivy

Ecology and the County intend to support this MOU by conducting additional sampling of the groundwater monitoring wells as determined necessary by the Parties over the next two years. Ecology and the County also intend to take responsibility for either continuing to monitor the groundwater or decommissioning the groundwater monitoring wells. Ecology will take lead on conducting groundwater sampling. The Parties agree to provide support to each other in obtaining access to the Site to conduct activities related to the groundwater monitoring wells. A decision on the frequency of monitoring will be made by the Parties after analyzing data obtained from the sampling work and reviewing any other relevant and available groundwater data.

May Creek MOU with King County's edits. King County requests two years of monitoring even if there are quarters with clean samples.
